Russia's Finance Ministry Sold $80 Million in Forex Interventions on Dec. 26

By The Moscow Times

December 30, 2014

Russia's Finance Ministry sold $80 million in forex market interventions on Dec. 26, the Central Bank said Tuesday.

The Central Bank publishes its interventions data with a time lag.

The Central Bank has spent over $80 billion defending the ruble this year, and the Finance Ministry recently started selling leftover foreign currency on its accounts to support the ruble.
