The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

Today in History, March 11

By The Moscow Times

March 11, 2014

Different colors helped to distinguish rank among the senators. (Vladimir Sverchkov / Wikicommons)

180 years ago today, in 1834, Nicholas I. introduced the first civic dress code in Russia. Ten shades of dark-gray or dark-green and red for senators made it possible to recognize the rank of a person by sight.

Original url: https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/03/11/today-in-history-march-11-a32838