

Hundreds Mourn Rock Star

August 15, 2010

The  Moscow Times

Hundreds of fans of the late rock star Viktor Tsoi visited his grave at Bogoslovskoye Cemetery in St. Petersburg on Sunday to commemorate the 20th anniversary of his death, Interfax reported.

People of all ages laid flowers on the grave, where a memorial, restored by architects who are his fans, was unveiled Sunday.

Tsoi, frontman of the rock band Kino, was considered the voice of perestroika generation youth. He died in a car crash in Latvia in 1990 at the age of 28.
