

APEC So Far Without Water

By The Moscow Times

July 28, 2011

The  Moscow Times

The Regional Development Ministry sent proposals to the government to build a water pipeline to Russky Island, where the 2012 Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation summit will be held, Izvestia reported Thursday.

To ensure a permanent water supply to Saperny Peninsula on Russky Island, a pipeline across Bosfor Vostochny Strait will have to be built at a cost of 2.3 billion rubles ($83.4 million).

The ministry noted that the expense is not included in the cost estimate for the summit. The Primorye region administration told Izvestia that the project did not include a water line because there were hopes of finding a source of fresh water on the island. But the search yielded nothing.

(MT)

Original url: <https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2011/07/28/apec-so-far-without-water-a8577>