The  Moscow Times

The mayor of the Moscow region town of Sergiyev Posad, Yevgeny Dushko, was shot dead Monday morning in a possible contract killing, the Investigative Committee said in a statement.

Dushko was twice at about 7:30 a.m. as he was leaving his house. He died in a hospital.

Dushko was elected mayor in April by the 25-person local parliament that he formerly chaired.

Sergiyev Posad, a historic town of about 105,000 people 60 kilometers north of Moscow, is most famous for being home to the Trinity-Sergius Lavra, the largest monastery in Russia.
