

Reputed Georgian Mobster Nabbed in Tula Region

By The Moscow Times

May 23, 2013

The  Moscow Times

Tula region police said Friday that they have detained a reputed Georgian-born mobster known by the nickname "Chuto Khonsky."

David Kurasbediani, 44, who also goes by "Chutala," was detained during an anti-mob operation after police learned that he had been living illegally in Tula and carrying out criminal activities, police said in a statement.

A search of Kurasbediani's person revealed a Russian passport issued under the name Vagan Grigoryan that police said showed evidence of being fake.

A criminal case has been opened into the alleged forgery. Kurasbediani was arrested and is being held by investigators.

Kurasbediani was crowned a "vor v zakone," or "thief in law," in 2001. He was sentenced to nine years in prison in 1998 for a series of robberies, and to three years in 2007 for illegal possession of heroin, Primecrime.ru reported.

A video posted on YouTube last year shows Kurasbediani admitting to being a mobster.

Related articles:

- U.S. Seeks Arrest of Reputed Russian Mobster
- Mafia War Brewing After Killing of Usoyan
- Putin Not Pictured With Reputed Crime Boss, Spokesman Says

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2013/05/23/reputed-georgian-mobster-nabbed-in-tula-region-a2433>