

Storm Halts Operations at Pacific Oil Terminal

By The Moscow Times

November 26, 2013

The  Moscow Times

The Pacific oil terminal of Kozmino halted operations on Monday due to stormy weather, state-run oil pipeline monopoly Transneft said.

"We have stopped the port today ... The weather forecast indicates that operations could be restarted on Wednesday," Transneft spokesman Igor Dyomin said.

Russia ships some 400,000 barrels per day, or bpd, of crude oil via Kozmino, mainly to China and Japan. It may hike the volumes up to 600,000 bpd next year.

The Hydrometcenter weather forecasting service said a storm has been raging through Russia's Far East, bringing blizzard and heavy rains.

(Reuters)

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2013/11/26/storm-halts-operations-at-pacific-oil-terminal-a29949>