

Today in History, Feb. 13

By The Moscow Times

February 13, 2014

The Tver station, which lay on the Nikolayevskaya railroad route. Goffert

172 years ago today, on Feb. 13, 1842, Nicholas I ordered the construction of a railroad connecting St. Petersburg and Moscow. Construction was completed nine years later, with the railroad named "Nikolayevskaya" in his honor.

Original url: https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/02/13/today-in-history-feb-13-a32049