

Today in History, Feb. 21

By The Moscow Times

February 21, 2014

A pre-1917 postcard of the Sevastopol seafront. paukrus

230 years ago today, on Feb. 21, 1784, Catherine the Great changed the name of the small Crimean seashore fortress Ak-Yar to Sevastopol. The name, which means "Venerable City," was chosen to reflect the ancient Greek origins of the Crimea.

Original url: <https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/02/21/today-in-history-feb-21-a32338>