

Today in History, March 11

By The Moscow Times

March 11, 2014

Different colors helped to distinguish rank among the senators. (Vladimir Sverchkov / Wikicommons)

180 years ago today, in 1834, Nicholas I. introduced the first civic dress code in Russia. Ten shades of dark-gray or dark-green and red for senators made it possible to recognize the rank of a person by sight.

Original url: <https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/03/11/today-in-history-march-11-a32838>