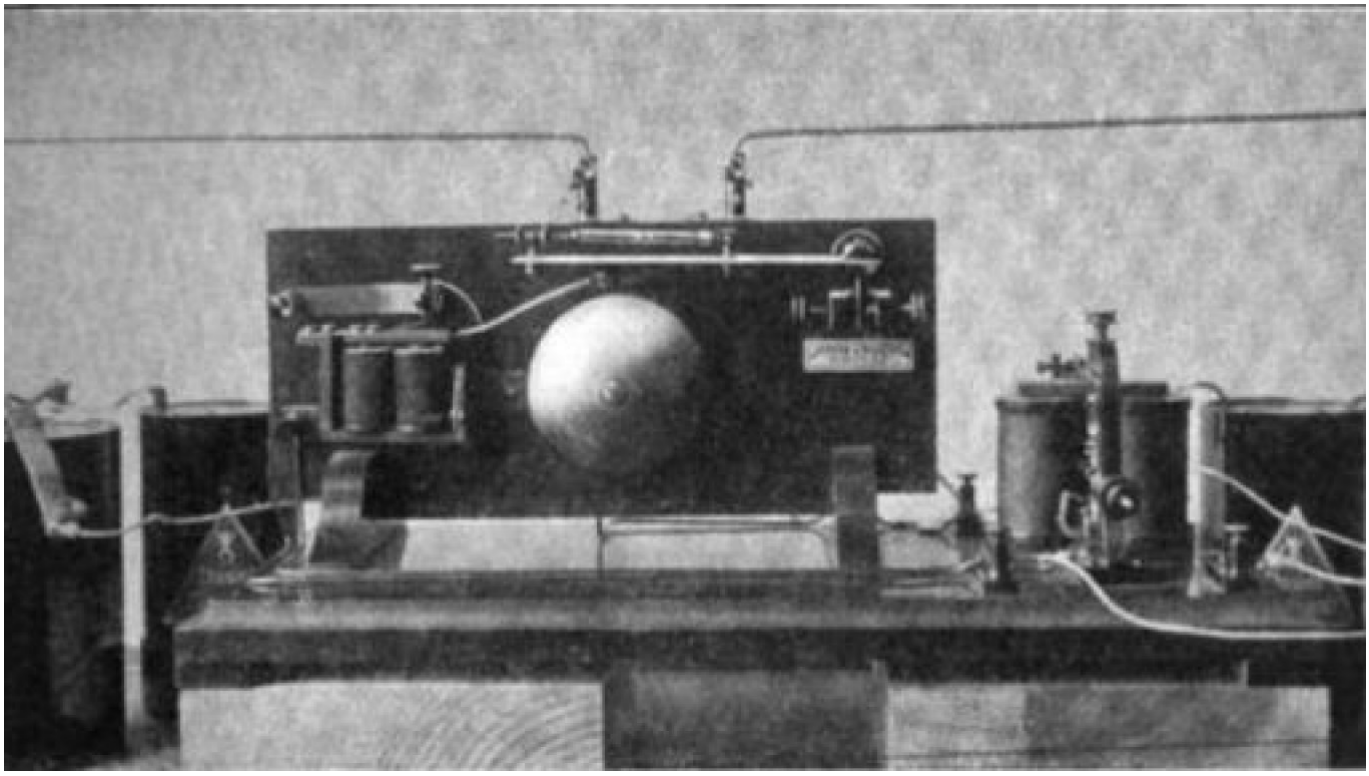
The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

Today in History, March 24

March 24, 2014



One of the first radio receivers, built by Russian physicist Alexander Popov.

118 years ago today, on March 24, 1896, Alexander Popov demonstrated radio wave transmission in St. Petersburg. Popov, along with Guglielmo Marconi, was one of the first to communicate by radio waves.

Original url: https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/03/24/today-in-history-march-24-a33243