

Editor Of Popular Afisha Magazine Quits Russian Media

July 20, 2014

The  Moscow Times

The editor-in-chief of the popular listings magazine Afisha announced on Sunday that he was resigning in order to do something else "far from Russian media."

Yury Saprykin, 41, made the announcement on his Facebook page, adding that he wished his colleagues "patience and good luck." His departure came a day after the magazine hosted its popular annual music festival "Afisha Picnic" in Moscow.

See also:

Afisha Picnic Celebrates 10 Years With Suede, Food and Music

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2014/07/20/editor-of-popular-afisha-magazine-quits-russian-media-a37491>