

Moscow Metro Stations Closed for Repair Over May Holidays

April 29, 2015

The Troparyovo metro station in Moscow.

Several stations on the Moscow metro will be closed for repairs over the May holidays, the subway authorities said in a statement.

May 2: The Lermontovsky Prospekt and Zhulenbino stations — the last two stations on the south end of the Tagansko-Krasnopresnenskaya Line (Purple Line) — will be closed. Trains will run only between the Planernaya and Vykhino stations.

May 2, 3, 4: The Prospekt Vernadskogo, Yugo-Zapadnaya and Troparyovo stations — the last three stations on the city's Sokolnicheskaya Line (Red Line) — will be closed. Trains will run only between the Bulvar Rokossovskogo and Universitet stations.

In both cases, free buses labeled “M” will run between the stations.
