

Russians Still Want Economic Integration with the West (Infographic)

By Alexandra Tyan

July 28, 2015

The  Moscow Times

A recent survey by the analytical Levada Center shows that Russians consider the current state of the economy as average, and still believe that their country would be better off integrating with the West.

1990s vs. 2015

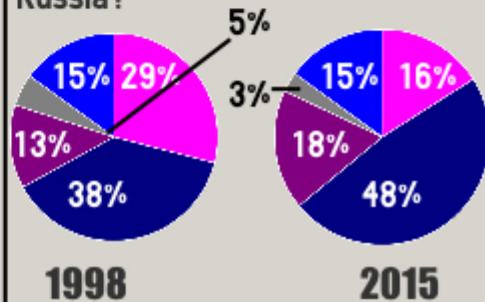

The State of Russian Economy in the Eyes of its Citizens

June 2015 survey by Levada Center reveals considerable change in public opinion since 1990s

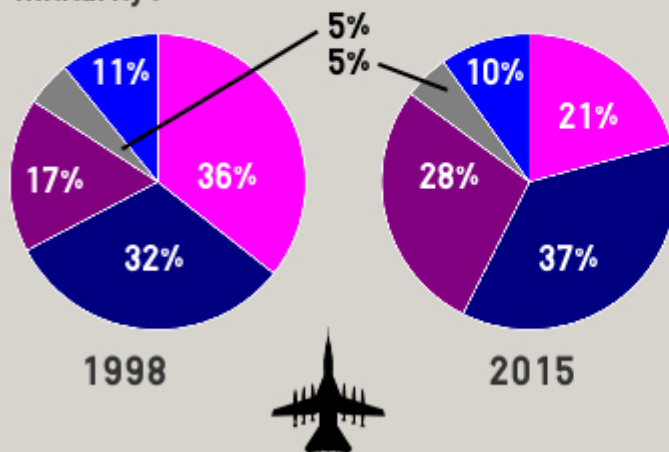

How would you assess the current state of Russian economy?

To what extent do you agree with the following: economic integration with the West is important for Russia?

To what extent do you agree with the following: it is more important for Russia to remain strong economically rather than militarily?

Fully agree

Rather agree

Rather disagree

Completely disagree

Don't know

Source: Levada.ru - poll conducted among 1600 people over 18 years old in 46 regions of Russia

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2015/07/28/russians-still-want-economic-integration-with-the-west-infographic-a48567>