Russian Defense Ministry: New Round of Airstrikes Hit 4 Syrian Targets

October 01, 2015

Frame grabs shows airstrikes carried out by Russian air force against IS ground positions in Syria

The Russian Defense Ministry said on Thursday it had carried out a new round of air strikes in Syria overnight, hitting four Islamic State targets while strictly avoiding populated areas.

It said Sukhoi-24M and Sukhoi-25 aircraft had flown eight sorties, hitting an ammunition depot near Idlib as well as a three-story Islamic State command center near Hama.

It said a pinpoint strike had destroyed a facility located in the north of Homs aimed at rigging cars with explosives for suicide attacks.
