Join the Chinese clientele

This is a place for people who love authentic Chinese food. Most of the diners are Chinese, with the rest a very mixed bunch, from students to businessmen. The menu offers nearly 200 dishes from the north and south of China, and all are prepared quickly — within 10 minutes. Just keep in mind that the portions are big and their notion of spicy is very spicy.

Lucky Noodles

Chinatown dive with great noodles

Step into the door of Lucky Noodles and walk into Chinatown. Folding chairs, a narrow countertop along the wall and a fridge — that's the total decor. But who cares? You get delicious Asian noodles and steamed buns. The portions are generous and the prices are affordable. The menu offers three types of noodles: chicken, beef and shrimp. Drinks: soda, Arizona iced tea, lychee and mango juices, and Lucky Buddha beer.

Wok Street Cafe

Pan-Asian minimalism and calm

The Wok Street Cafe is minimalist, with lots of light and everything made of natural materials. This small island of pan-Asian calm specializes in noodles for every taste, but you can also order sushi, rolls, and tempura, hot dishes, soups, salads and even burgers.

Wok House

Chinese chefs and regional cuisine

This Chinese restaurant prides itself on its chefs, who are straight from China, and its variety of regional Chinese food, from Szechuan to Hunan. The menu is small but includes favorites like Szechuan chicken with peanuts, cucumber and chili sauce, and eggplant in miso sauce. Everything is cooked to order and served steaming hot.
