1. Have dinner on an ice-breaker yacht

Radisson

Take in the stunning Christmas lights of Moscow whilst meandering on the Moscow River on one of the new Radisson Hotel flotilla of ice breaking yachts that ply the water 365 days a year. You can dine in the on-board restaurant or simply just come along for the ride. It's the perfect way to see the city after dark.

3. Hang out with Huskies in Kuzminki Park

Manege

Every weekend from noon to 5 p.m., you can find huskies and husky puppies ready to be loved in Kuzminki Park. Take them for a walk, go on a sleigh ride or play in a husky puppy pen. You read that right: a pen full of husky puppies. Ten minutes with the puppies costs 200 rubles. They say money can't buy happiness, but we say when puppies are involved, it can.

4. Get lost skiing in Sokolniki Park

Okay, it's not the alps, but Sokolniki Park offers a great cross country skiing service. It's the perfect way to escape from the city and get lost in over 15 kilometers of tracks that take you through the park's forests. If you fancy a break from the hustle and bustle of the city, this winter wonderland is the perfect place to take a breather.

5. Take the kids to a fun play in English

The Flying Banana Theater is putting on a funny, touching, engaging and very colorful musical in English about the harrowing adventures of a stick man who has trouble moving about the city. It's been held at 11 a.m. on January 6 at the fabulous Worker and Collective Farm Girl center right outside the gates of VDNKh Park.

6. Take a tour of the metro

Manege

If your daily commute on the metro is so tiresome that you've stopped looking around, discover its beauty and fascinating history on a tour of the main stations. It's lots of fun, very interesting, and also very warm on cold days.

7. Take your kids to an antique circus

Meyerhold

Check out this short performance of the Mandarin Angel for kids aged 4 and older Meyerhold Center. Dancing, juggling, flying, and making dreams come true — that's what the Mandarin Angel does during the holiday season.

8. Hop on a steam train

The Russian Railways have dusted off and polished up a small fleet of steam trains that will take you and your family on all kinds of tours, from a short jaunt over to the Railway Museum to see Grandfather Frost and the Snow Maiden, to tours around Moscow's trains stations and trips out of the city to Suzdal, Kolomna and a farm. All aboard!

9. Go backstage at the Bolshoi

Oleg Chernous

If you were too late, or too poor, to get tickets to the Nutcracker at the Bolshoi Theater, take a backstage tour instead. They run in English three times a week, and if you're lucky, you'll catch a rehearsal in progress.

10. Experience the miracle of Christmas

Come to Muzeon on Jan. 7 to see a grandiose performance of dance, stunts, lights and magic as Liquid Theater, Sila Sveta and other groups light up the sky. Does an event that took place centuries ago in a small desert town have meaning for us today? Come and see.

11. Go snow tubing

Oleg Chernous

Tubing is taking the city by storm and is a great way to release your inner child. Parks around the city have constructed ice shoots for inner tubes. There are plenty of sites around the city, including a slope that you can use in any weather at Muzeon. Bombs away.
