

Exiled Oligarch Khodorkovsky Starts Search for Putin Replacement

By Katie Marie Davies

September 12, 2016

Mikhail Khodorkovsky

Exiled⊠Russian oligarch Mikhail Khodorkovsky has announced his search to⊠find Russia's next president.⊠

The⊠former Yukos chief is asking Russians to⊠nominate potential Russian leaders⊠via his p roject⊠"Vmesto Putina" or⊠"Instead of Putin."

Khodorkovsky⊠confirmed that he would⊠ financially\support

a\succandidate
chosen\subsetthrough the project
to\subsetrival
Russia's\subsetcurrent
president,\subsetVladimir Putin,
in\subsetthe country's 2018 presidential elections.

He also confirmed that he would not run for president himself.

"For⊠many years, Kremlin⊠spin doctors have⊠told the people of ⊠Russia that⊠there

⊠is no

alternative to Putin," the⊠project states on its website.

X"

We⊠want to show that ⊠among 145 million Russians, we⊠have ⊠people who⊠are ⊠able to take up the post."

A⊠panel of political experts have⊠already put⊠forward

13

notable⊠figures

■who they would like to see receive Khodorkovsky's■support

. ×

Russians⊠ will⊠be able ⊠to back their favorite nominee⊠via the project's website.

Candidates⊠include former Finance Minister Alexei⊠Kudrin, leader of Parnas opposition party Mikhail Kasyanov, and⊠ former⊠judge Tatyana Morschakova.

The⊠nominations were made without ⊠prior consultation, and⊠those put forward to take part in the project only heard of their own involvement on Monday morning.

One⊠candidate, the deputy head⊠of

Transparency

International Russia,

"fell \overline{\overlin

Others were less enthusiastic about their surprise nominations.

"I⊠am asking the creators of this little game to remove my name and photo⊠from their site," journalist⊠

Elena

Rykovtseva

⊠wrote on

her⊠Facebook

page.⊠"I'm ready to follow this project from the sidelines, but no more!"

Other⊠

candidates, \square such as

activist⊠

Alexei⊠Navalny, are legally ■ unable to hold office within Russia due to past criminal convictions. **■

presidential ≥ spokesperson Dmitry Peskov said that the Kremlin had "no interest∑in the project."

"We⊠

have⊠already read about this project in the media," said Peskov

.⊠"

It⊠is a ⊠project

which⊠is

by⊠people who are⊠already irrevocably cut off from Russia,

what's going on here, and from the Russian agenda. We do not see anything of⊠ interest⊠in this project at⊠all."

Original url:

https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2016/09/12/billionaire-khodorkovsky-starts-search-for-putin-rival-a5