The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

Police Find $123M Cash in Home of Russian Anti-Corruption Offical

September 12, 2016

Dmitry Zakharchenko Moskva News Agency

One of Russia's top anti-corruption☒officials has been arrested on suspicion of accepting bribes after a☒search of his home revealed stacks of cash worth $123 million.

Police☒arrested Dmitry Zakharchenko, deputy head of the Ministry☒of Internal Affairs' Committee for Economic Security and Combating☒Corruption, after uncovering the money in his☒ car,☒study and sister's apartment,☒ the☒RBC news website reported.

Zakharchenko's☒official income has ▣not exceeded 3 million rubles

($46,000)
annually▣in recent years, one investigator▣told Moscow's ▣Presnensky district court.

The official was detained on▣suspicion of abuse of power, obstruction of justice, and taking▣bribes, and▣is to remain
in custody until Nov. 8.

Investigators▣are currently investigating links between Zakharchenko▣
and▣a case against Russia's now-defunct NOTA Bank, the Russian media▣reported Monday.

The▣company, which had been among Russia's top 100 banks in terms of▣assets, was stripped of its license in November 2015 for violating▣bank regulations.

Zakharchenko▣maintains his innocence.

Original url:
https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2016/09/12/police-find-123m-cash-in-home-of-russian-anti-corruption-offical-a55294