

Russia Ends Ukrainian Oil Pipeline Agreement

October 13, 2016

Sergei Chuzavkov / AP

Russia has ended an agreement to acooperate with Kiev on oil transportation through Ukraine.

The treaty, which has been in place since 1995, had governed a pipeline running from the Russian city of Samara through Ukrainian territory.

The sections of the⊠pipeline which ran through Ukraine were sold by Russian state⊠company Transneft to the Swiss firm International Trading Partners AG⊠in February 2016.

Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev said that the agreement was simply "no longer needed."

Original url: https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2016/10/13/russia-ends-ukrainian-oil-pipeline-agreement-a55724