

Moscow Weekend: Craft Beer Lovers Rejoice

August 23, 2017

Over 75 breweries from Russia and around the world will be presenting their craft beer. Flickr

Looking for something to do this weekend in Moscow? Love beer? Have we got a festival for you!

On Saturday the Flacon Art and Design Center is hosting the Craft Depot Fest 2017, a celebration of craft beer from around the world. Over 75 breweries from Russia, Europe and even the U.S. will be pouring their wares by the mug full all day and half the night. You can check out beers from Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, Germany, Scotland and Ireland. You can decide if you prefer Lithuanian to Estonian craft beer — or the other way around. And you can taste what small breweries in Brooklyn are up to.

For brewers, large and small, there will be lectures, talks, and master classes. For them and everyone else, there will be souvenir stands and a market — and, of course, food trucks selling the perfect beer food: American, Mexican and Belgian. To help you get in the mood, there will be music, too: CityPipes, BOOZEMEN ACOUSTIC JAM, Remark, NEEDSHES, and many more.

The event will be held in the Art Space of Flacon from noon to 11 p.m. Day tickets range from 750 to 5,000 rubles, depending on how limited or unlimited you want your beer degustation.

For more information and advance tickets, go to the festival site.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2017/08/23/moscow-weekend-craft-beer-lovers-rejoice-a58735>