

At Least 14 Russian Schoolchildren Injured in Knife Attack

January 15, 2018

vampirov_bajan / Twitter

More than a dozen schoolchildren and at least one teacher were injured in a reported knife attack in the Russian city of Perm.

Initial reports had said that two masked men had entered the school building early Monday.

Follow-up reports said that a fight had occurred between two students wielding knives at the school, leading to the injuries of several bystanders.

The regional investigative committee has opened a criminal case into attempted murder, according to an online statement published Monday.

A teacher and one 16-year-old student were hospitalized with severe neck injuries, according to the website of the regional health ministry. Fifteen people in total were reportedly wounded in the incident, the state-run TASS news agency reported, citing the city administration's press office.

The two suspects have since been detained, a source in the emergency services told the state-run RIA Novosti news agency.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/01/15/russian-schoolchildren-injured-in-knife-attack-a60178>