

Foreign Embassies in Moscow Receive Mysterious White-Powder Envelopes

February 15, 2018

Moskva News Agency

Police have launched an investigation after several foreign embassies in Moscow received envelopes containing a mysterious white powder.

At least three embassies belonging to European and Middle Eastern countries have received the envelopes, the Interfax news agency cited an unnamed source as saying Wednesday.

In an email to The Moscow Times the Dutch Embassy confirmed it was among the embassies but said work continued as normal. “Like many other embassies we have received an unknown substance,” the statement said. “It was checked by [the] appropriate Russian services and found not harmful.”

Related article: In Numbers: Bomb Hoaxes and Mass Evacuations Plague Russia

A spokesman for the Czech Embassy told the state-owned TASS news agency the embassy was evacuated for several hours after receiving a similar envelope.

Envelopes with white powder were also sent to Donald Trump Jr. in New York on Monday, as well as Barack Obama's offices in Washington and Britain's House of Parliament in London.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/02/15/foreign-embassies-in-moscow-receive-mysterious-white-powder-envelopes-a60524>