The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

These Are the Russians Accused of Meddling in the 2016 Election

February 19, 2018

FBI Director Robert Mueller Dennis Brack / Bloomberg News

(Bloomberg) — Special Counsel Robert Mueller charged 13 Russians and three companies with a sophisticated, years-long conspiracy to meddle in the 2016 U.S. election.

Working through a Russian organization called the Internet Research Agency, they set up social media pages, stole Americans' identities, bought political ads, staged rallies and worked to "sow discord in the U.S. political system." None of the individuals are in custody.

Related article: Alleged Troll Factory Mastermind Prigozhin, 12 Other Russians Charged With U.S. Election Meddling

This is who Mueller charged, with details from the indictment:

Internet Research Agency LLC — a Russian company that runs influence campaigns on behalf of the Kremlin Concord Management and Consulting LLC and Concord Catering — related Russian businesses with Russian government contracts that served as the primary funding source for the Internet Research Agency.

1. Yevgeniy Viktorovich Prigozhin — a Russian businessman, known as "Putin's Cook" for catering state dinners with foreign dignitaries, who was head of the Concord companies. He and his companies allegedly financed the Internet Research Agency.
2. Mikhail Ivanovich Bystrov — the director of the Internet Research Agency
3. Mikhail Leonidovich Burchik — the second-highest ranking director of the Internet Research Agency
4. Aleksandra Yuryevna Krylova — the third-highest ranking employee in the company
5. Sergey Pavlovich Polozov — an employee who managed the IT department and bought U.S. servers to mask the company's location in Russia when conducting operations in the U.S.
6. Anna Vladislavovna Bogacheva — an employee who served as a translator and oversaw data analysis.
7. Maria Anatolyevna Bovda — an employee who worked on translations.
8. Robert Sergeyevich Bovda — a manager of translations.
9. Dzheykhun Nasimi Ogly — head of translations.
10. Vadim Vladimirovich Podkopaev — a translator who also worked on U.S.-focused research and creation of social media content.
11. Gleb Igorevich Vasilchenko — an employee who oversaw posting, monitoring and updating social media content for accounts controlled by the organization.
12. Irina Viktorovna Kaverzina — a translator who operated multiple U.S. personas used to post social media content.
13. Vladimir Venkov — a translator who also operated U.S. personas that posted social media content

Original url:
https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/02/19/these-are-the-russians-accused-of-meddling-in-the-2016-election-a60548