

Kremlin Says Spy Attack in Britain Not a Matter for Russian Government

By Reuters

March 12, 2018

Dmitry Peskov / Kremlin Press Service

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said on Monday that the poisoning of former Russian double agent Sergei Skripal in Britain was not a matter for the Russian government.

"The mentioned Russian citizen worked for one of the British intelligence services, the incident occurred in Great Britain. This is not a matter for the Russian government," Peskov told a conference call with reporters.

Peskov also said he had not heard allegations from British politicians about possible Russian involvement in the attack.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/03/12/kremlin-says-spy-attack-in-britain-not-a-matter-for-russian-government-a60775>