

Rammstein Frontman Presented Lenin Gift by Russian Fans in Moscow

October 30, 2018

Till Lindemann (Alexander Shcherbak / TASS)

Russian fans have presented Till Lindemann, the frontman of the cult German rock band Rammstein, with a Lenin bust in Moscow, a week before the country traditionally celebrated the start of the October Revolution (Nov. 7).

When asked by the state-run RIA news agency about the present, Lindemann jokingly said: "Wonderful Lenin." Lindemann had reportedly studied Lenin's biography in school while growing up in East Germany.

In 2016, the singer called himself a victim of "Putin propaganda" after a fake photograph of him wearing a Putin T-shirt was circulated in the Russian media following a Rammstein concert in Moscow.

Related article: Rammstein Lead Singer Says He's Victim of Russian Propaganda

Lindemann is currently in Moscow for a literary concert of his poems, which will continue in St. Petersburg, Novosibirsk, Irkutsk and Samara.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2018/10/30/rammstein-frontman-presented-lenin-gift-by-russian-fans-in-moscow-a63349>