

Aeroflot Introduces Cheaper Fares for Passengers Who Travel Light

March 19, 2019

Sergei Vedyashkin / Moskva News Agency

Russia's national flag carrier Aeroflot will introduce hand luggage-only fares for some of its medium-haul flights at the beginning of April, the Kommersant business daily reported on Tuesday.

The new fares come after increased passenger demand for charges to reflect this lighter style of travel. The discounts will apply to select flights operated by Aeroflot and Rossiya to some German and Italian cities.

Related article: Russia's Pobeda Airline \(Finally\) Relaxes Hand Luggage Rules

"Now we can offer the best option for those who want to travel light and on a budget, and for those who want to get a premium flight experience," Andrei Chikhanchin, deputy CEO for commerce and finance at Aeroflot, said in a statement.

"In some areas, the plane fare discount will be up to 30 percent," the airline added.

All Aeroflot and Rossiya flights will continue to offer normal economy class fare options at no extra cost, including free checked baggage, the news website reported.

Earlier this year, the Pobeda budget airline was ordered by Russia's Supreme Court to allow backpacks and other items as free hand luggage following numerous complaints and lawsuits from passengers.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/03/19/aeroflot-introduces-cheaper-fares-for-passengers-who-travel-light-a64870>