

World Bank Lowers Russia's 2019 GDP Forecast to 1.4%

By Reuters

April 05, 2019

Oil prices have fallen Vyacheslav Prokifiev/TASS

The World Bank said on Friday it had lowered its forecast for annual economic growth in Russia this year to 1.4 percent from a projection in January of 1.5 percent.

"A downgraded forecast for gross domestic product growth in 2019 reflects lower oil prices; the medium-term outlook remains modest," the World Bank said.

Real GDP growth exceeded expectations last year, reaching 2.3 percent, but the rise was largely due to "one-off effects in non-housing construction", the international financial institution said.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/04/05/world-bank-lowers-russias-2019-gdp-forecast-to-14-pct-a65104>