

Russian Lawmakers Approve New Internet Isolation Law

By Reuters

April 16, 2019

Sergei Kiselyov / Moskva News Agency

Russia's lower house of parliament approved on Tuesday the third reading of a draft law that aims to increase Moscow's sovereignty over its internet segment and defend against foreign meddling, Interfax reported.

Related article: Russian Lawmaker Spotted 'Ghost-Voting' for Internet Isolation Law

The bill must now be approved by parliament's upper house and the presidency before passing into law.

The bill's authors said earlier that the measures are needed to defend the country after the United States adopted what they described as aggressive new cyber security policies last year.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/04/16/russian-lawmakers-approve-new-internet-isolation-law-a65248>