

Russia's Arctic Basks in the Snow for Summer '19

May 18, 2019

Alina Moiseeva / _linamoon / Instagram

In Moscow, residents are enjoying the start of a breezy summer with increasingly warm temperatures and picnics in the park. Nearly 2,900 kilometers northwest, residents of Norilsk — an industrial city above the Arctic Circle — are not quite as lucky. However, they're not letting the lack of warm temperatures stop them from some serious summer vibes.

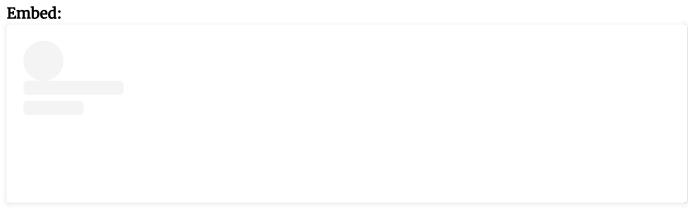

Here's a look at how Norilsk spends the summer months:

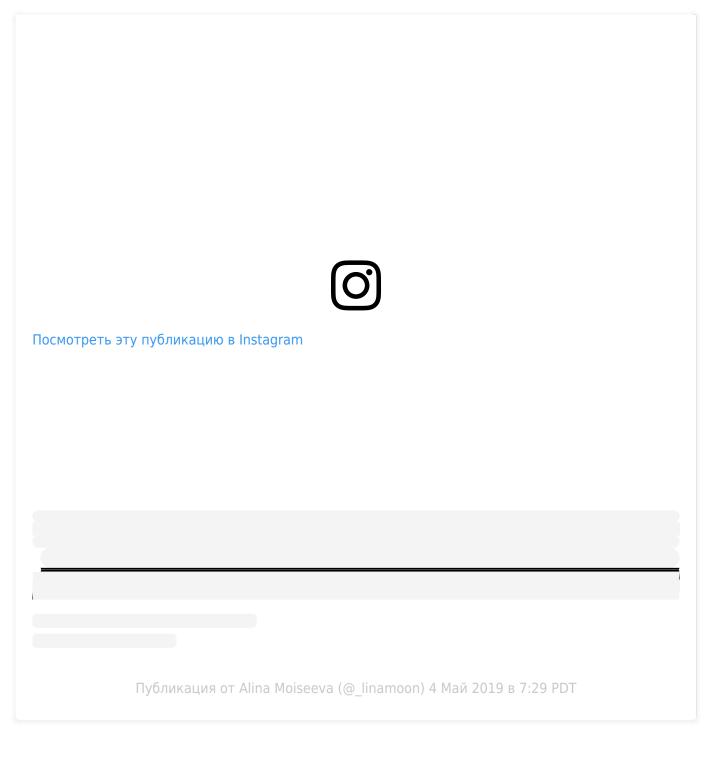

Summer calls for shashlik, obviously.

Embed:

Outdoor activity abounds wherever you may be.

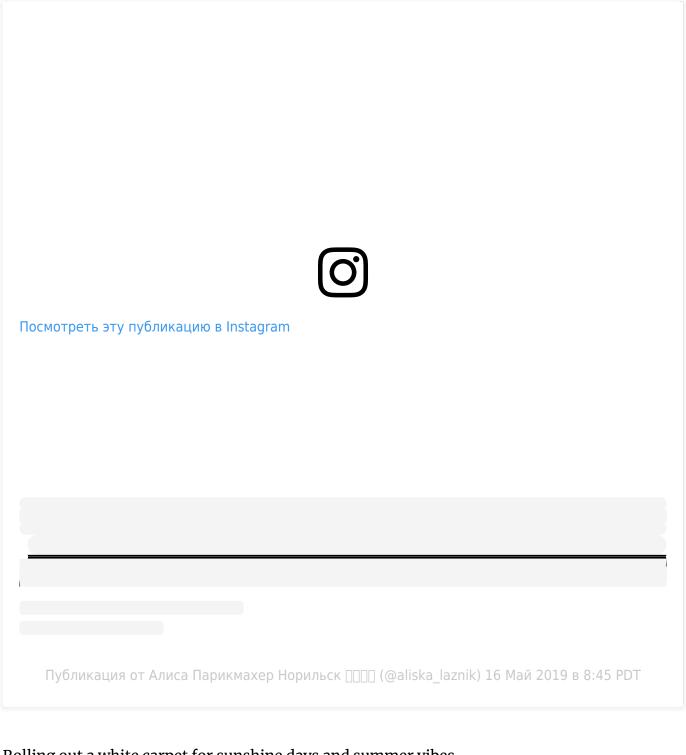

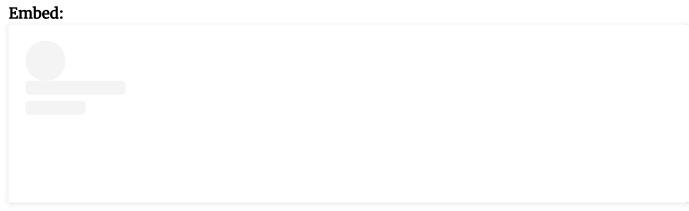

A casual stroll through the park on a warm summer's day.

Embed:

Rolling out a white carpet for sunshine days and summer vibes.

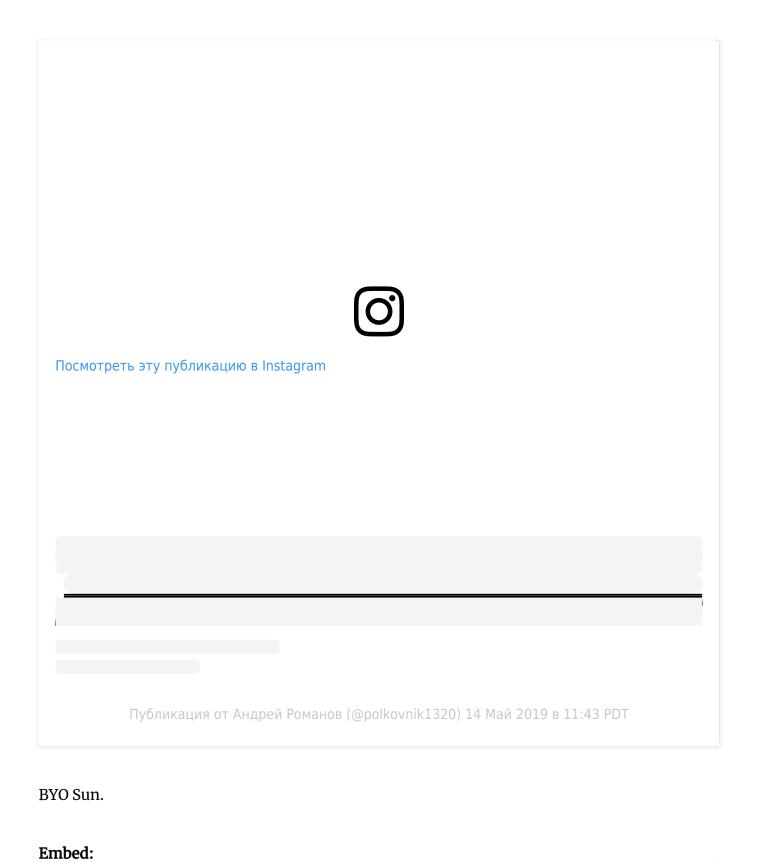

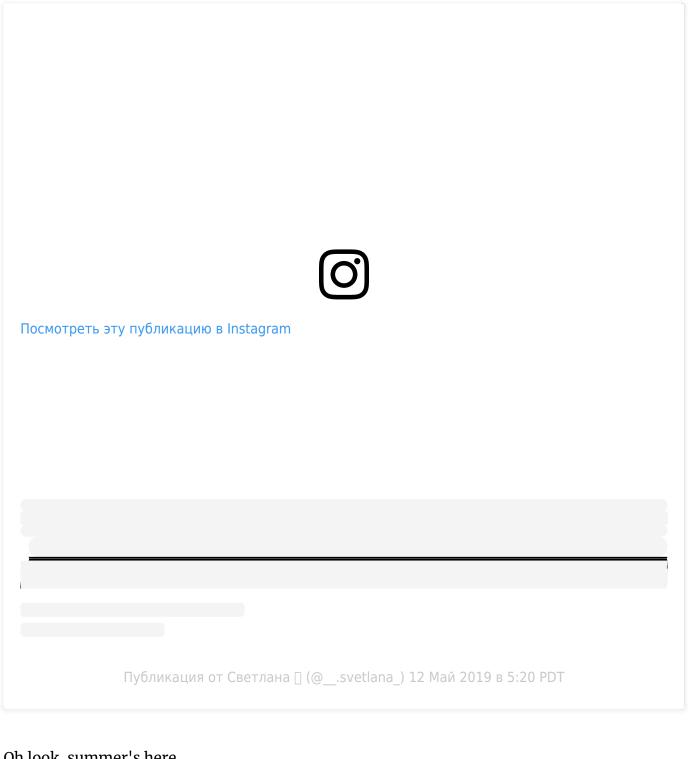

Dance like it's minus 6 degrees outside.

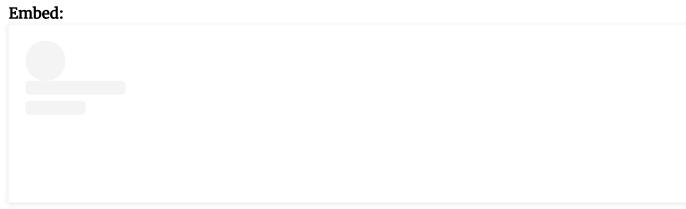

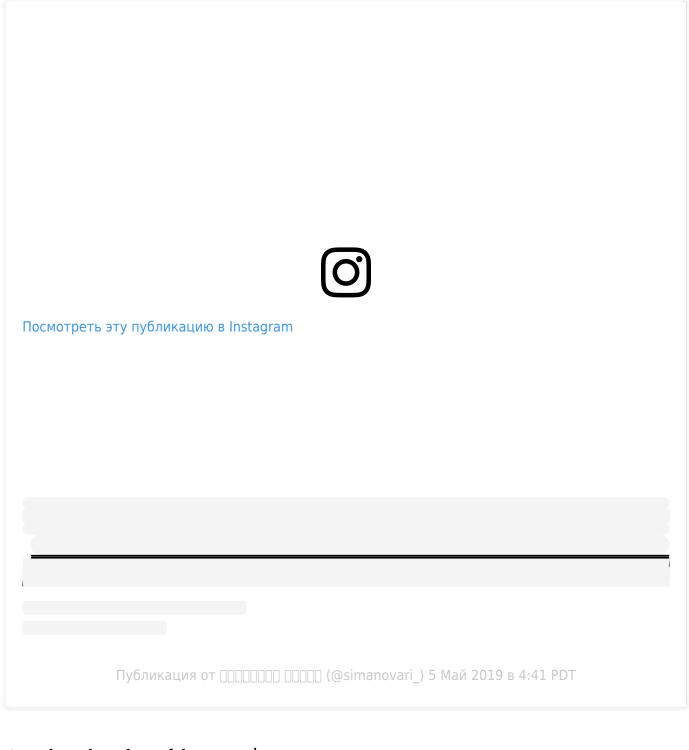

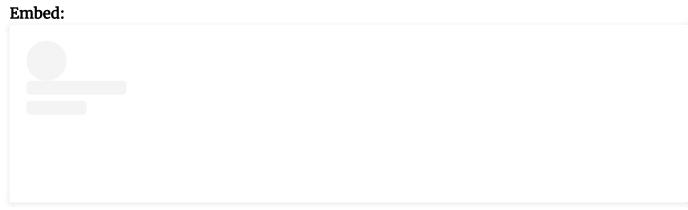

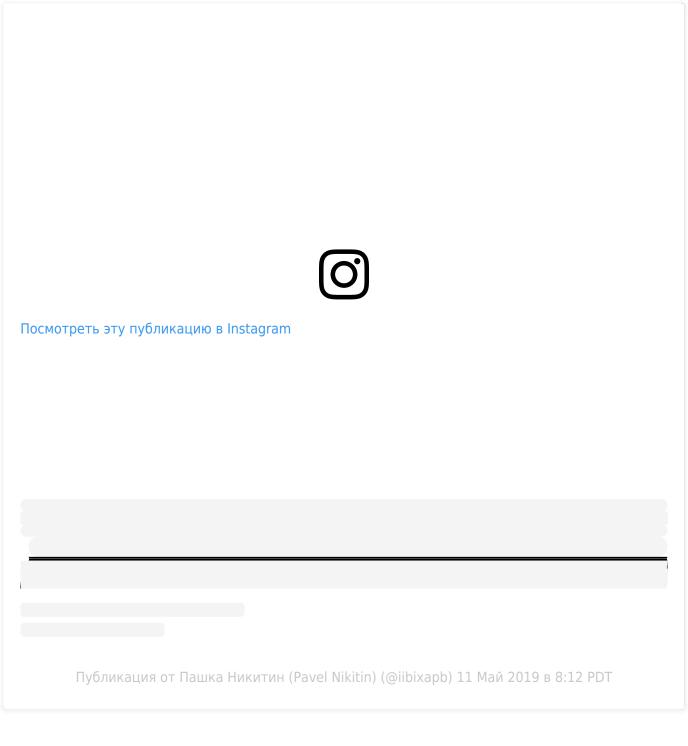

Oh look, summer's here.

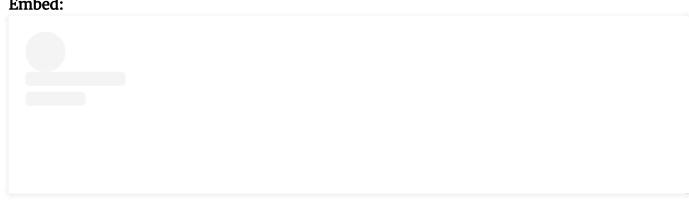

Gotta love the colors of the season!

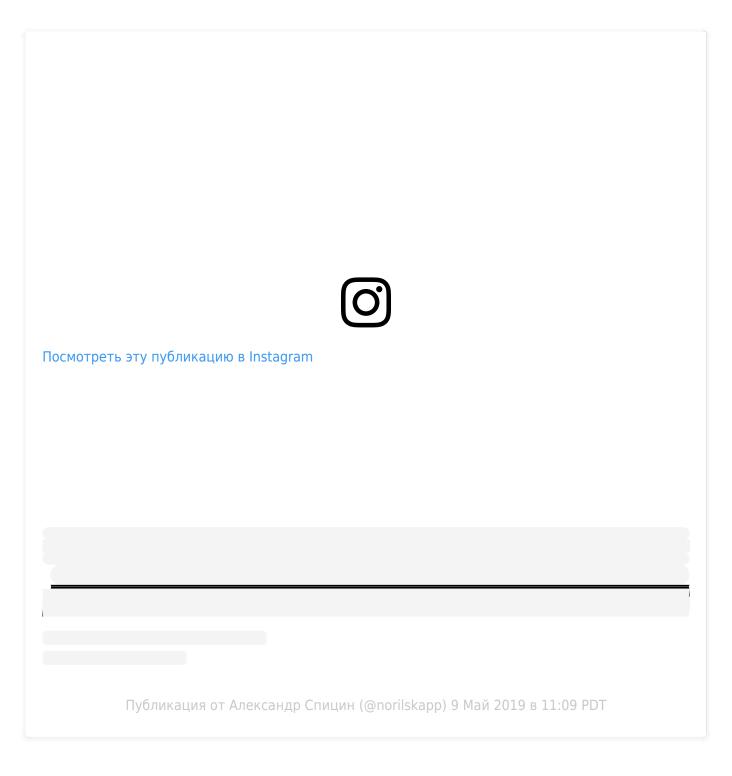

Looks like Frosty has seen better days, however.

Embed:

Original url:

https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/05/18/russias-arctic-basks-in-the-snow-for-summer-19-a6562