

Ukraine's Zelenskiy Asks U.S. for Stronger Anti-Russia Sanctions on First Day in Office

May 21, 2019

president.gov.ua

Newly inaugurated Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy has asked U.S. officials to step up sanctions against neighboring Russia in one of his first foreign policy actions.

Zelenskiy has said that Ukraine's most pressing issue is conflict with its neighbor Russia, which annexed the Crimean peninsula in 2014 and backed separatists in a war in the east that has killed 13,000 people. In his inauguration speech Monday, Zelenskiy said his first task was to achieve a ceasefire, adding that dialogue with Russia could only happen after the return of Ukrainian territory and prisoners of war.

Related article: New Ukrainian President Zelenskiy Takes Office, Calls to End War in East

“I would like to urge the United States to keep increasing sanctions against [Russia],”

Zelenskiy said in a meeting with U.S. lawmakers and Trump administration officials, including Secretary of Energy Rick Perry, Monday.

During the meeting, Zelenskiy noted that Washington is "a powerful and very serious partner in overcoming Russia's aggression."

He voiced a similar "hope" that the European Union will continue sanctions pressure on Russia in talks with European energy commissioner Maros Sefcovic later that day.

Reuters contributed reporting to this article.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/05/21/ukraine-zelenskiy-asks-us-for-stronger-anti-russia-sanctions-on-first-day-in-office-a65665>