

Russian Regulator Could Open New Case Against Google – Reports

By Reuters

June 07, 2019

nicodangelo / Flickr

Russia's state communications regulator on Friday said it was not satisfied with Google's content filtering system and that it could open a new case against the company, the state-run RIA news agency reported.

Related article: Google Began Censoring Search Results in Russia, Reports Say

Russia last year launched a civil case against Google, accusing it of failing to comply with a legal requirement to remove certain entries from its search results.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/06/07/russian-regulator-could-open-new-case-against-google-reports-a65931>