

Winter Has Come to Russia's Arctic City of Norilsk

September 11, 2019

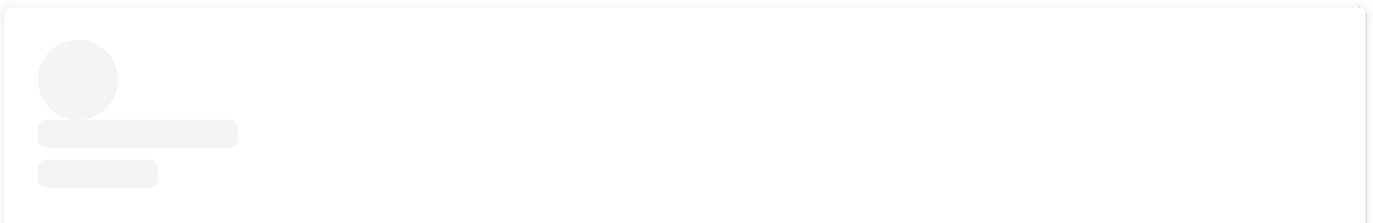

Winter comes early in the Arctic city of Norilsk — and barely halfway through the month of September, the first snows have made their arrival. Seeing snowstorms so early in the season is rare even for Norilsk, weather forecasters told Russian media, adding that they don't usually start until late October. As we make the best of the warmer temperatures in Moscow while we can, here's a look at what the people of Norilsk have been up to:
