The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

Kremlin Questions Language of 'Unusual' Trump Letter to Erdogan

By Reuters

October 17, 2019

Gage Skidmore / Flickr (CC BY-SA 2.0)

The Kremlin on Thursday questioned the tone of a letter sent by U.S. President Donald Trump to his Turkish counterpart Recep Tayyip Erdogan, which it called highly unusual for correspondence between heads of state.

The White House on Wednesday released the Oct. 9 letter, in which Trump urged Erdogan: "Don't be a tough guy" and "Don't be a fool!"

Related article: Trump Officials Rush to Turkey as Russia Advances to Fill Syria Void From U.S. Retreat

"You don't often encounter such language in correspondence between heads of state. It's a highly unusual letter," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told reporters on a conference call.

Original url:
https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/10/17/kremlin-questions-language-of-unusual-trump-letter-to-erdogan-a67782