The Moscow Times
30 YEARS
INDEPENDENT NEWS FROM RUSSIA

One Day in a Wheelchair in Moscow

By Héloïse Bargain

November 15, 2019

An estimated 8% of Russians have disabilities, but they are rarely seen on Moscow's streets. Activists say it's because the city lacks accessibility for people in wheelchairs. We spent a day with Diana, a young joyful woman who is disabled, to see what it's like to travel by metro in Moscow.

Original url:
https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2019/11/15/one-day-on-a-wheelchair-in-moscow-a68198