

Russia Readies Sweeping Amnesty Bill for 75th WWII Anniversary

January 14, 2020

Presidential human rights council head Valery Fadeyev has said it would be "right" to pass an amnesty bill marking the 75th anniversary of the war's end. Stanislav Krasilnikov / TASS

Russia's lower house of parliament has prepared a wide-reaching amnesty bill intended to mark the 75th anniversary of the Soviet victory over Nazi Germany in World War II.

The end of the Great Patriotic War, as World War II is known in Russia, is still celebrated as the country's most important public holiday every May 9. Presidential human rights council head Valery Fadeyev has said it would be "right" to pass an amnesty bill marking the 75th anniversary of the war's end.

Related article: Russian Activist Sentenced to 4 Years for 'Multiple Protests'

State Duma deputy Sergei Ivanov introduced the draft resolution to the State Duma on Monday, according to the document published on the Duma's website.

If passed, the amnesty will cover first offenders of minor crimes from groups including juvenile delinquents, women, people with disabilities, the elderly and veterans. It will also include Chernobyl liquidators and people who have received state awards from the U.S.S.R. and Russia.

The amnesty may apply to activist Konstantin Kotov, who was sentenced to four years in prison for “multiple breaches” of Russian public demonstration rules in September, Ivanov told the MBKh media news website. Kotov was the second person ever to be prosecuted under the controversial legislation after participating in last summer’s mass opposition protests.

Kotov’s lawyer Maria Eismont said her client wouldn’t be eligible for amnesty according to the document.

Related article: How the Moscow Protest Cases Are Changing Russia’s Justice System

“I don’t know if the author read his project, but I did it three times and don’t see how the amnesty covers Konstantin,” she wrote on her Facebook page.

The amnesty doesn’t apply to the majority of the other so-called “Moscow Case” defendants who were convicted on charges of “mass unrest” following the summer opposition protests. Fadeyev had spoken out against including the “Moscow Case” defendants on the amnesty list.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2020/01/14/russia-readies-sweeping-amnesty-bill-for-75th-wwii-anniversary-a68899>