Thousands of Russians are posting photos of themselves in red clothing to social media in a show of support for jailed Kremlin critic Alexei Navalny and his wife Yulia Navalnaya.

During her husband’s court hearing Tuesday, Navalnaya was seen crying while the judge read out the verdict to convert his suspended sentence of 3.5 years into a 2.8-year prison sentence.

"Don't be sad, everything will be fine," Navalny said to Yulia as he was led from the courtroom.

The next day, journalist and Telegram blogger Katya Fyodorova called on readers to show support for both Navalnaya and the families and loved ones of the thousands of detained pro-Navalny protesters across Russia. She instructed her followers to turn Navalny’s last words to his wife into a hashtag (#негрустивсебудетхорошо) and to post selfies in red because it is Yulia’s favorite color.

“I invite all those who care to post selfies wearing red, so Yulia and everyone else can follow the hashtag and see that we are many and we are not indifferent,” Fyodorova wrote on her Telegram channel.
