

Russian Man Takes 'Iceberg Car' for a Drive

February 18, 2022

A man in the Siberian city of Krasnoyarsk froze his car for five days — as an experiment.

The man later wanted to drive the frozen Zhiguli to the auto repair shop...

But all he got was an 1,800-ruble ($23.60) fine after he was pulled over by the police.

As it turns out, frozen cars aren't allowed on Russian roads.

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2022/02/18/russian-man-takes-iceberg-car-for-a-drive-a76449>