

Moscow's Department Stores Empty After Western Luxury Brands Halt Sales in Russia

March 09, 2022

Hundreds of Western brands have pulled out of Russia over its invasion of its pro-Western neighbor, symbolizing Russia's growing economic isolation and its pariah status in the global community. As a result, the glittering department stores of Russia's capital Moscow — where one could once find nearly every major fashion house's clothes — now stand empty. Here's a closer look:
