Gorlach also said Moscow has freed most of the Russian citizens who were taken hostage by Hamas militants.

"We've managed to rescue most of them, we expect that this work will continue, it is very complicated," he said.

The Hamas-run Gaza Health Ministry says that over 21,000 people, mostly civilians, have been killed since Hamas militants massacred Israeli citizens and took over 200 hostages on Oct. 7.

President Vladimir Putin has refused to condemn Hamas' attack and compared Israel's response to the Nazi siege of Leningrad in World War II.

Russia has officially backed calls for a ceasefire at the United Nations.
