

In Photos: 2 Years of Russia's War on Ukraine

February 23, 2024

On Feb. 24, 2022, people across Ukraine awoke to the sound of Russian missiles as President Vladimir Putin declared what he called a "special military operation." Two years later, millions of Ukrainians have been displaced, tens of thousands of civilians and combatants have been killed and a number of cities and towns have been destroyed by Russia's offensive — with no end in sight. To mark its second anniversary, The Moscow Times has collected photos from throughout the war:
