

Are Feminists the Kremlin's Next Target?

Russia on the Record

May 03, 2024

Activists from the Feminist Anti-War Resistance protesting against the invasion of Ukraine in June 2023.
Feminist Anti-War Resistance/Facebook

In April, reports emerged that Russia had opened criminal cases against two prominent Russian feminist activists – Daria Serenko, one of the founders of Feminist Anti-War Resistance, and Zalina Marshenkulova, who also openly opposed the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Though both women now live abroad, they were added to Russia's federal wanted list. Join us to explore the influence of Russia's feminist movement, and whether women's rights activists are the next target of the Kremlin's repressions.

Feminist activist Zalina Marshenkulova joins us to discuss the Kremlin's increasing pressure on women's rights campaigners, the feminist movement's influence, and her addition to Russia's federal wanted list.

Russia on the Record is a podcast where Moscow Times journalists, independent experts and ordinary Russians reflect, analyze and explain what's going on in Russia right now.

You can listen to us on the following platforms:

Apple Podcasts

Spotify

Amazon Music

Google Podcasts

YouTube

Original url:

<https://www.themoscowtimes.com/2024/05/03/are-feminists-the-kremlins-next-target-a85022>